CAPT. TILLMAN AT GAFFNEY.

The newspapers are already at loggerheads as to what Captain Tillman did and did not say in his speech at Gaffuey, and although his speech has teen represented as a calm, and dispassionate deliverance, yet it has given rise to Reated discussions. This points clearly to what would have been the result if the people had not in their wisdom rescinded the order formass meetings. The principal contention is that the report published in the News and Janes, D. D., published by B. F. Johnson & mon good. No good and worthy man ought Courier and the Greenville News represented Co., of Richmond, Va. Their arrangement Courier and the Greenville News represented | Co., of Richmond, Va. Tais was attested to by more than a dozen men who were at the meeting at Gaffney. One of the main arguments used by the Ha-kell men, in support of their policy, was that if the negroes were not appealed to now and their vote used in the cause of good goveroment, it would surely be used by the Tillmanifes to retain the government two years bence: A review of Capt. Tillman's record and atterances throughout the campaign discloses no warrant for such an assertion, or grounds to anticipate such action. We unhesitatingly say that his policy in respect to the negro bas been pointed and plain. He has held out no allurements to attract them to his standard. In this we believe him to Colonel J. L. M. Irby : have been so constrained to condemn.

We have only to add that the letter from our old bero, Hampton, is all that could be xpected, and we again call attention to and emphasize his adjuration that all semblance of violence be avoided in the conduct of the election, and we take this occasion, which is the last we will have before the impending issues are decided on Tuesday next, to say to the people of Sumter that they will show the lighest manhood and patriotism by allowing all colored citizens who may be so disposed, the privilege of casting their ballots unmolested and if Capt. Tillman be elected, as we think be will, it will be the most powerful argument South Carolina can advance against the passage of the Lodge bill.

This perhaps renders it necessary for me to address ou again, but as various communications and invitations to speak at public meetings have reached me, I take this method of making my views known to those who have done me that induces me to take this course is the fact that my position regarding political matters here and my conduct have been grossly misrepresented in some quarters, and I desire that my fellow-citizens may be fully informed as to both; so that they may judge aright. When my old constituents of this County who have so often trusted and honored me in the past, invited me to address them in June last, came having but one object in view, and that was to appeal to our people for harmony for conciliation, for unity, for action. I exressly disclaimed any intention of interfering in any way with the canvass for Governor, c ats. She has a rival on Hazell Street who is and I neither advocated any candidate not opposed any. I said that the people were the sole and proper judges in the selection of their officials, and that from their verdict there should be no appeal. In order that there wishes as to the selection of candidates I urged that a primary should be held, and had this plan been adopted the present deplorable condition of affairs would not have existed. Other counsels prevailed and the result is a divided party and a bitter contest between Democrats, all of whom should be united to maintain the supremacy of our party and to promote the welfare of our State. No one deplores the unhappy dissensions in our party more than myself, and I would willingly make any sacrifice to heaf them, were it in my power to do sc. But the only remedy that can be applied must come from the conservaism and the patriotism of the people themselves, and we can only hope that by the part in any public discussion on hustings. this juncture would be unwise; that they would only tend to widen the existing breach in our party and perhaps to make it irreconcilable. We want no further excitement; we We have already taken a position upon the have had already too much of that and of a peraicious character, the issues involved are fully understood by the people who are entirely competent to decide them. But whilst I shall not speak again in this canvass I shall support the ticket nominated in September. But in doing this I by no means endorse the grave charges which have been made against the Democratic party of the State. Honesty and integrity have marked every administration which has governed the State since 1878 and we shall indeed be fortunate if our officials in the future shall be as able, as patriotic and as honest as they have been in the past fourteen years. I am impelled to support the September ticket because it was nominated by the Democratic Convention and because the other ticket lacks that endorsement. I regret deeply that this latter ticket has been brought out gentlemen composing it and I do not for one noment question the motives of those who entertain the highest possible regard and esteem I cannot forget his eminent services to the State in peace and in war. Mr. H. R. Thomas.

Editor Watchman and Southron: I beg to be allowed to reply to your editorial "A Primary that Proves Nothing." You know the "Tillmanites" have earnestly sought to effect a reconciliation of the two factions in this County. We have been misrepresented as to the peace conference on the day before the "Straightout" primary. Mr. Editor, if you and I had a falling out and we agreed to that the Haskell movement was unwise. You held your primary, you did your best, and polled 866 votes. At some of the precincts you had no boxes, just for the same reason that we had none in our primary at Wedgefield, because we had too few to vote; hardly enough for managers. You say your friends, while the Haskell men regard it as a people didn't vote because it rained in the norning; we say our side didn't vote because it did't rain and our people wouldn't leave their cotton picking-the honest truth is we both did our best. You poiled 866 votes and we polled 1206 votes. By reason of our proven majority, we are fairly and justly entitled to the recognition and support of the Democrats of Sumter County, and the duty of the Democratic candidates on the other side is very plain. It is to bury all selfish ambition and retire from the field for the comty should at the end of each quarter be paid worthy and conservative set of candidates, Mr. John Jefferies, the chairman of the directly to Mrs. Davis.
